UPDATE Johnson & Johnson Talcum Powder

As 2022 draws to a close I want to express my gratitude and the appreciation of everyone here at Goldstein Greco for your unwavering support in our battle on your behalf against Johnson & Johnson.

Johnson & Johnson has used every means of delay to avoid facing the tens of thousands of women, wives, mothers and their families whose lives were devastated by their talc products. There is light at the end of the tunnel.

As you know, after many losses in court including a jury verdict of over $2 Billion, Johnson & Johnson created a new company, gave the new company all of its talcum powder debt, and declared that company bankrupt the next day. The bankruptcy automatically stopped (stayed) all talc lawsuits from moving forward. The cases of over 35,000 women and their families, including yours, remain stayed at this time due to the bankruptcy.

We continue to fight this as a fraudulent bankruptcy. Whether Johnson & Johnson, a company worth almost $500 Billion, can take away the rights of thousands of women it severely injured and killed was briefed and argued several weeks ago in the 3rd Circuit Court of Appeals. The Court's decision is expected very shortly and we are cautiously optimistic that all cases will be removed from bankruptcy and restored to the multi district court for resolution. However the 3rd Circuit rules, we have made sure that your case is fully prepared and ready to proceed toward resolution in either the multi-district court or in the bankruptcy court.

I look forward to updating you further as soon as the 3rd Circuit issues its decision. As always, please do not hesitate to contact me with any questions or concerns.

In the interim, please accept our best wishes for the holidays and the New Year to you and your family from everyone here at Goldstein Greco.

Very truly yours;

Brian A. Goldstein
