IMPORTANT UPDATE Johnson and Johnson Talcum Powder

Goldstein Greco, P.C. is delighted to share the welcome news that Johnson & Johnson's second bankruptcy was thrown out on Friday, July 28, 2023. This critical decision comes days after a jury awarded $18.8 Million to a talc victim in the only case allowed to proceed to trial during the bankruptcy. J & J filed its second bankruptcy less than two hours after its first bankruptcy was found to be fraudulent and also misleadingly claimed the second bankruptcy was a settlement. As a reminder, false rumors are abundant on the Internet!

J & J continues to deny wrongdoing and vows to appeal; juries viewing the evidence have repeatedly determined that J & J knew for decades that its talc products were contaminated with cancer-causing asbestos and hid that information from consumers. We are very optimistic the 3rd Circuit Court of Appeals will again reject any J & J appeal claiming the $500 Billion company is in "financial distress." J & J chose profits over the health and lives of mothers who trusted Johnson & Johnson's baby powder purity for themselves and their babies. Despite knowing the ravages of ovarian cancer, J & J continued to sell its talcum powder in the United States through 2020 and did not stop selling overseas until this year.

We are in the best position since the start of this litigation; we realize the road has been long (and will continue to be). We appreciate your patience and commitment. Our dedication to obtain superior results remains our number one priority. We will continue to provide updates to you, as well as our website, GoldsteinGreco.com. As always, we are here for you.
